

Ana Rita Ferreira received her Ph.D from the University of Lisbon in 2012, with a thesis titled Saint Augustine and the limits of Aesthetics. She is a member of the Center of Philosophy of the University of Lisbon, where she works within the research line of History of Philosophy and serves as editorial secretary of the peer-reviewed magazine Philosophica. She is also an integrated member of the Research Group NUPPE (Institute of Arts of the Federal University of Uberlândia–Brazil), committed to the academic research within the fields of art history and art education.

Courtney D. Fugate is assistant professor of civilization studies at the American University of Beirut and post-doctoral fellow at the Fox Center for Humanistic Inquiry, Emory University, 2013-2014. He is co-author and co-translator of Baumgarten's 'Metaphysics': A Critical Translation (Bloomsbury 2013) and author of The Teleology of Reason: A Study of the Structure of Kant's Critical Philosophy (de Gruyter, 2014) as well as of articles appearing in the European Journal of Philosophy, the History of Philosophy Quarterly and the Canadian Journal of Philosophy.

Dirk Michael Hennrich is an integrated member of the Center of Philosophy of the University of Lisbon and holds a MA in Philosophy from the University of Basel. He finished his PhD in 2014 at the University of Lisbon and is currently researcher with a Portuguese culture grant at the Calouste Gulbenkian Foundation. His main research fields are Landscape philosophy, German Idealism, Romanticism and Philosophy in Portugal and Brazil in the 20th Century.

Gualtiero Lorini got his PhD in 2010 at both the Universities of Salento and Paris IV Sorbonne. He was a visiting scholar at the Thomas-Institut of the Universität Köln (2008-2009) and at the Herzog-August Bibliothek, Wolfenbüttel (2009). In 2012/2013 he was a DAAD-Post-doc-Stipendiat at the Innovationszentrum Forschungswissen of the Technische Universität Berlin. Since 2014 he is a research fellow at the Centro de Filosofia of the Universidade de Lisboa. He is member of the Italian Society for Kantian Studies. His main research area is German idealism, with particular focus on the history of concepts and sources.

Maximiliano Hernández Marcos (1963-) is a tenured professor of history of philosophy at the University of Salamanca, and a member of DGE18J (Deutsche Gesellschaft für die Erforschung des 18.Jahrhunderts). He is author of many articles about the following research lines: the philosophy of I. Kant and the Enlightenment, Natural Law and the Prussian Code and German political philosophy of the Weimar era. His most important books include his doctoral thesis: La Crítica de la razón pura como proceso civil (Salamanca, Universidad de Salamanca, 1994); the editing of the texts Hermann Heller, El sentido de la política y otros ensayos (Valencia, Pre-Textos, 1996), and Kant II (Madrid, Gredos, 2010); and the co-edition of the collective volumes Literatura y política en la época de Weimar (Madrid, Verbum, 1998), and La primera Escuela de Salamanca (1406-1516) (Salamanca: Universidad de Salamanca, 2012).

J. Colin McQuillan received his PhD. in philosophy from Emory University in 2010. He is currently Assistant Professor of Philosophy at St. Mary's University in San Antonio, TX USA. He is author of Immanuel Kant: The Very Idea of a Critique of Pure Reason (Northwestern University Press, Forthcoming) and Early Modern Aesthetics (Rowman & Littlefield, Forthcoming). He is also the co-editor, with Joseph Tanke, of The Bloomsbury Anthology of Aesthetics (Bloomsbury, 2012). He has published numerous articles and reviews on Kant and the history of modern European philosophy.

Tomoe Nakamura (BA from Keio University, Japan and MA from University of Melbourne, Australia) is currently a PhD candidate at Monash University, Australia. She is working on comparative philosophy between Japanese and modern pre-Kantian European aesthetics with regard to the concept of sensibility. Her research interests include rationalism, German idealism and Japanese philosophy. Her latest article is "Nishi Amane's Response to European Dualism" which was included in Postgraduate Journal of Aesthetics, published by the British Society of Aesthetics in 2013.

Adrian Switzer, Ph.D. is an Assistant Professor in the Department of Philosophy at the University of Missouri Kansas City. The co-translator of Parmenides, Cosmos and Being (Marquette 2008), contributor to the Cambridge Foucault Lexicon (Cambridge, 2014), and author of articles and book chapters on Kant, Foucault, Deleuze, Merleau-Ponty, Irigaray, Nietzsche and Jean-Luc Nancy, Dr. Switzer is currently completing a manuscript on Nietzsche's political philosophy.

Bengerd Juul Thorsen earned an MA in classical philology from Aarhus University in Denmark in 2011. She is currently a Ph.D. student at the Department of Aesthetics and Communication – Aesthetics and Culture at Aarhus University, finishing her thesis on the role of poetry and literature in Baumgarten's aesthetic theory.